

---

Connect | LOGIN | REGISTER | FRANÇAIS

Put Your Write Hand In

The Momoir Project

Toronto

(Sep.11.08)

comments

0

0

Click here to publicly +1 this as Cori Howard

First solids, first steps, first day of school: We thought we'd remember the details of these milestones forever. But as time flies and our brains fill with details about practice times and dentist visits, our memories have become fuzzy. (Labour wasn't all that bad, was it?)

The Momoir Project offers a series of classes designed by award-winning journalist (and mom) Cori Howard, to help moms commit their memories to paper. Whether one is striving for an eloquently penned baby book or wants to get published, this six-week writing program ($405) gets the creative juices flowing.

The Yonge/Davisville class features instructor Randi Chapnik Myers, who has written for Today's Parent, The Globe and Mail, and Toronto Life, to name but a few. The Bloor/Bathurst program features Katrina Onstad, whose current work can be found in Chatelaine, Toronto Life and at CBC.ca. (Yes, it's the same Katrina who was the National Post's film critic. No, we don't know if she has Brad Pitt's phone number.)

Can't make it out before bedtime? Howard has also programmed an online version of the class. It's all about expressing oneself (no grammar pop-quizzes, we promise). To keep the intimidation-factor down, class sizes are capped at 10, online classes at eight.

Don't delay: The early bird gets the words.

The Momoir Project

www.themomoirproject.com

corih@telus.net

Tags: shops & services, Services and Stuff, Sweet Nothing, city living

0

0

Like

Send

comments

0

0

Like

Send

Calculate Cost per Wear